We're certified to install Duro-Last membranes, The World's Best Roof,[®] however we also offer other options as needed.

If you currently have an EPDM rubber roof, you likely already know the importance of an annual inspection, and potentially maintenance. Two of the greatest concerns are shrinkage and seams. Over time, the rubber will shrink and pull away from the parapet walls and flashings; this typically causes leaks. The shrinkage also causes seams to break down - another cause of leaking.

Rubber roofs were popular, and one of the best options due to their lower initial cost. You can get more life out of select rubber roofs with consistent repairs, however sometimes the less costly option is to replace with a new roofing system.

Our roofing inspection services can give you peace-of-mind on the status of your roof and when repair/maintenance or replacement are needed, we'll provide a complimentary comparison and estimate.
